

Instructor's Guide Quick Start

The BookShark™ Instructor's Guide (IG) is designed to make your educational experience as easy as possible. We have carefully organized the materials to help you and your children get the most out of the subjects covered. If you need help reading your schedule, see "How to Use the Schedule" in Section Four.

This IG includes a 36-week schedule, notes, assignments, readings, and other educational activities. For specific organizational tips, topics and skills addressed, and other suggestions for the parent/teacher see Section Three. Here are some helpful features that you can expect from your IG.

Easy to use

Everything you need is located right after the schedule each week. If a note appears about a concept in a book, it's easy to find it right after the schedule based on the day the relevant reading is scheduled.

4-Day Schedule

Designed to save one day a week for music lessons, sports, field trips, co-ops, or other extra-curricular activities.

Weekly Overviews

Summarize lessons, skills, and activities for each week.

Optional: Dictation¹

The soldier knocked open the top of the box and held up a square brown solid-looking object. "What have we here?" he cried. "Hardtack, boys. And it ain't changed a bit. Good for hammering nails or using as shoe soles or even melting down for bullets. But not much for eating, I'll say!"

Dictation

Weekly passages prompt children to pay attention to grammar, spelling, capitalization and punctuation. Sometimes an activity is assigned that uses the passage to introduce a grammatical or writing activity topic.

Rubrics

Methods to evaluate your children's writing, like rubrics, make measuring progress quick and easy.

Activity Sheets

Activity Sheets follow each week's notes and are customized for each lesson to emphasize important points in fun ways. They are designed with different skills and interests in mind. You may want to file them in a separate binder for your student's use.

Activity Sheet

1. Briefly explain how commas are used in each sentence below.
 - a) As a matter of fact, I would love to eat ice cream.

 - b) Natalia, would you like to dance with me?

Instructor's Guide Resources and New User Information

Don't forget to familiarize yourself with some of the great helps in Section Three and Section Four so you'll know what's there and can turn to it when needed.

Day 1

Readers

We include the Readers schedule in both the History and Language Arts Guides. Please refer to the schedule in your History F Guide for additional vocabulary and comprehension questions. The schedule in this Language Arts guide is included because we sometimes reference items from the book for writing exercises such as the Optional: Dictation assignments.

Li Lun, Lad of Courage | pp. 11–38

Creative Expression

Our goal is to encourage your children to write daily. We realize, though, that there are some days when they will not feel like writing.

For your convenience, we provide an optional dictation passage each week. The next time you find yourself with a reluctant writer, just use the dictation passage as your writing assignment for the day. And encourage your children to get some extra rest so that they're ready to tackle their regular writing assignment the next day.

Preferred Dictation Method

Ask your children to read through the dictation passage to familiarize themselves with it. They should note any words, capitalizations, or matters of punctuation that require special attention. They should ask you to clarify anything they're unsure about.

Give your children no more than five to ten minutes to prepare to take dictation. Preparation may involve writing out unfamiliar words, practicing spelling them out loud or on paper, trying to remember how a word looks by "seeing" it in their minds, drawing a word in large letters written in mid-air with an imaginary pen, etc. When their time is up, give the dictation, clause by clause, reading each clause only twice (repeating it only once). Your children should write in the cursive style and, as you read the passage to them, you should not emphasize the different sounds in each word.

Before handing their papers to you, your children should check their work for errors. They should mark and correct any errors they find. Discuss with your children what you think they have done particularly well, as well as what they could do better.

If you see consistent spelling, punctuation, or handwriting problems, keep a record on the weekly schedule and review those areas.

About Mechanics Practice

Each week, we offer a brief introduction to one grammatical or mechanical topic. This year your children will work through three basic groups of skills. We will study basic grammar skills in two main sections: Sentence Basics (nouns, verbs, adjectives, etc.), and The Building Blocks of Sentences (phrases, clauses, active and passive voice, etc.). We'll then intersperse the grammatical lessons with common Mechanics topics that we'll schedule throughout the year.

Look for the skills covered each week in the "Weekly Overview" table, located at the beginning of the Day 1 Creative Expression Notes. For a 36-week progression of topics and skills studied this year in Language Arts, see our List of Topics and Skills, located in Section Three.

Work Independently

This year, in order to enable your children to study independently, you will find the bulk of the Language Arts instruction on the Weekly Activity Sheets, with a small summary of what we teach each day included in your Notes. Feel free to read and work with them through the lessons on the Activity Sheets, or give them the reins to work solo, once you feel they are able to do so.

Feeling Overwhelmed?

Due to the myriad of concepts to cover—many of which may seem abstract—and the subjectivity that evaluating writing assignments often requires, the idea of teaching Language Arts may seem daunting. Understandably! For this reason we have included an article called "Recommendations for Teaching Language Arts" in Section Three of this guide to help you navigate your Language Arts journey this year. We hope the suggestions found here will help you determine how to use this program so that it works best for your family, and will provide answers to further teaching questions you may have.

Weekly Overview

Mechanics Practice: Nouns—gender; concrete/abstract; compound; collective

Creative Expression:

Skill: Sensory details

Assignment: Write an observation essay about something that interests you

Optional: Dictation¹

He stood up and shouldered the bundles again, happy that he was toiling up the mountain instead of sailing over the sea. The rocks were at peace among themselves; the waves were not.

A: Mechanics Practice

Today your children will learn about common and proper nouns, the gender of nouns (feminine, masculine, neuter, and indefinite), concrete and abstract nouns, compound nouns, and collective nouns. See the Week 1 Activity Sheet for more information. If your children have trouble distinguishing all of the nouns from the passage, have them look up words they are uncertain about in the dictionary.

Answers:

1. Common Nouns: bundles, mountain, sea, rocks, peace, waves; Proper Nouns: none.
2. All of the nouns in the passage are neuter—they are all objects or ideas, which are neither male nor female.

Grammar/Mechanics

Do BookShark's Grammar Ace (Item# RL6) for one year between 4th–7th grade. Choose the grade that works best for your children. Use the space on the Schedule page to record what you have done. We recommend completing one lesson per week.

Optional: Keys to Good Language 5 | Pretest 1

Find instructions and answers in the Teacher's Guide.

Vocabulary Development

Our vocabulary development program is based on and ties in with our History programs' Read-Alouds. You will find all the words and instructions for Vocabulary Development in your History Instructor's Guide.

If you'd like more practice, we recommend the Wordly Wise program. We schedule this optional workbook for you.

Optional: Wordly Wise 3000, Book 5 | Lesson 1A

Find instructions and answers in the Teacher's Guide.

Handwriting

We offer and recommend Handwriting Without Tears for your handwriting program. If you have another handwriting program you are using, please feel free to skip over this section. We schedule Handwriting Without Tears 5: Can-Do Cursive for your convenience, but if you purchased a different level you can find the appropriate schedule at www.bookshark.com/handwriting-schedules.

Optional: Handwriting Without Tears 5 | pp. 6–9

Spelling

Spelling You See

To improve your children's spelling, complete daily spelling exercises. We recommend the Spelling You See program. Use the "Spelling" line on your weekly schedule to record what you have done each week. For more information on which level is best for your student please see the General Spelling Readiness Guidelines found at www.bookshark.com.

B: The Purpose of Writing

This year your child will compile their writing assignments and other Language Arts work into a sketchbook. The Activity Sheets included with this Instructor's Guide, collected in a separate binder, will provide the 36-week organizational selection for their sketchbooks. Have your children include assignments they complete on a separate sheet of paper by filing them behind the appropriate week's Activity Sheets. Today your children will begin their sketchbook by conducting a self-interview. See "B: The Purpose of Writing" on the Week 1 Activity Sheet for more information.

D: Observation Essay

Today your children will use the notes from their observation to write a simple essay. See “D: Observation Essay” on the Week 1 Activity Sheet.

We provide an example to help guide your children’s writing, as well as your efforts to evaluate their work. Use our examples as a rough guide to help your children generate ideas and as an approximation of what we expect the end product of a particular assignment to look like.

I think the neighbor’s cat lost at least one of her nine lives today. Fluffy is her name. Stalking birds is her game.

As I sat by my window typing merrily away, I caught sight of Fluffy walking slowly across the backyard. She crouched low to the ground and stared straight ahead with an eerie intensity. Her nose twitched as it searched for the scent of her prey.

I glanced over to see her likely quarry a few yards away. A large woodpecker with a bright scarlet head sat peacefully poking at a nut it had found in the woods. As Fluffy got closer, it must have picked up on the sound of Fluffy’s paws crunching dry leaves on the ground.

As Fluffy sprang into attack mode, the woodpecker flew in a quick circle and bopped Fluffy repeatedly on the head with its sharp beak. Fluffy screamed in pain and ran home with her tail between her legs.

It pays to be observant. If I hadn’t noticed the scene unfolding in front of me, I never would’ve been able to help my neighbors figure out why Fluffy needed stitches!

How to Evaluate This Assignment

Since this is their first writing assignment of the year, don’t worry about evaluating it too heavily. Today, have your children simply focus on getting their thoughts on paper. When they’re finished, ask them to read their essays to you and ensure they have an introduction, body, conclusion, and sensory details. If you’d like, you can also go back and work with them on the basic mechanics: capitalization, punctuation, spelling, and grammar. Did they include sensory details from multiple senses in their essay? If so, then they have succeeded.

Rubrics

Have you ever wondered how you should evaluate your children’s writing? Much of literary critique is subjective, but it’s helpful to have a concrete way to help you focus your critique. A rubric is a simple form that will help you give point values to certain characteristics of an assignment.

At this age, scale back on emphasizing the writing process and focus on the final result. When your children proudly present you with their hard work neatly written on a clean piece of paper, celebrate!

Do you remember when they were learning to talk? If you pointed to that colorful floating orb in the sky and said, “Look, a balloon!” and they repeated, “Bay-yoon!” did you correct their pronunciation and then give them a bad grade? Probably not. We hope you laughed, and simply said it again the right way. Even if they called it a “bay-yoon” for the next three months, we imagine you simply kept presenting them with the correct pronunciation and eventually they learned it.

Please think of learning to write as “learning to speak on paper.” Since your children have hopefully had a few years to practice writing by this point, it’s okay to start honing their technique. Strive to teach your children with the same small steps, and the same gentle redirections—slowly, over time. Be careful not to expect too much too quickly. It will come. Celebrate the small accomplishments, and keep engaging your children with examples of good writing (just like the ones in the books you’re reading), and talk about what could be improved when you come across lesser samples.

At this age, feel free to start implementing evaluation rubrics like the one on the next page, as you evaluate your children’s work. Please note that the items we chose to emphasize on our sample are just ideas of things you might want to include on a rubric of your own. As their teacher, only you will know how your children are writing—where they shine and what they need to polish up—so be sure to include both potential challenges and potential successes on rubrics you compose. We will include a sample rubric each week that you may choose to use as is or modify for your own purposes.

When you create a rubric, first draft a list of all the things you hope the assignment will accomplish, or you hope your child will learn or practice as they complete the assignment. Sometimes it’s helpful to list skills by category, so you’re sure you’ve thought of everything you want to evaluate.

Next, assign a point value for each item, giving more points to skills you want to weigh more heavily (or see as more important). Add up all of the points in the rubric to determine the number of points that will equal 100%. After that, simply read through your children’s work thinking about each point on your rubric as you go. Divide the number of points your children earned by the number of points possible to determine a percentage.

When your children are older, it may help to hand them a copy of your evaluation rubric when they first begin an assignment. Isn’t it easier to hit the target when you can see what you should aim for? Afford this same opportunity to your children in the future when they work on writing assignments

At this age, you may be able to let your children write their first drafts independently, but they will probably still benefit from an “Editorial Review” session with you before they draft their final copies. Later in the year, you might put together an Editing Checklist with your children if you’d like them to begin editing their own papers independently as well. Draft such a checklist together, and be sure to include both basic content you always want them to check, as well as common mistakes you know they’re still working on. Most importantly, use rubrics to help you more clearly gauge the areas in which your children could use more work and revise your instruction accordingly.

He stood up and shouldered the bundles again, happy that he was toiling up the mountain instead of sailing over the sea. The rocks were at peace among themselves; the waves were not.

A: Mechanics Practice

By now we imagine that you know a noun is a word that names a person, place, thing, or idea. A proper noun names a specific person, place, thing, or idea, such as Pittsburgh, or Mary, or The Statue of Liberty, and common nouns do not name something specific: tomato, pencil, park. Proper nouns are always capitalized, whereas common nouns are not.

Did you know that nouns can also denote gender? Nouns can be feminine, masculine, neuter, or indefinite. For example:

	Example:
Feminine: (female)	mother, aunt, hen, waitress
Masculine: (male)	father, uncle, rooster, waiter
Neuter: (neither male nor female)	table, lamp, car
Indefinite: (either male or female)	teacher, children, horse

Nouns may either be concrete objects (like a pool or a trampoline) or an abstract idea (like love, sadness, or justice). Compound nouns are made up of two or more words (like football, step-sister, or middle school), and a collective noun names a specific kind of group (like a gaggle, herd, or team).

1. Take a moment to underline all of the nouns in the Dictation passage above. If you find a proper noun, underline it twice.
2. Once the nouns are underlined, label the gender of each one. Use F for feminine, M for masculine, N for neuter and I for indefinite.
3. Think of your own example for each of the following type of nouns:

concrete: _____

abstract: _____

compound: _____

collective: _____

Did you know ... that writers use personification, a form of figurative language, to help them describe and create images for their readers? In literature, personification means that an animal or an object has human characteristics. Read this week's passage again. What does it mean that the rocks were at peace among themselves and the waves were not? How can rocks have peace? How does this help describe the setting and Li Lun's emotion? If you close your eyes, you may be able to imagine the calm rocks stacked against each other and the waves crashing and fighting. Li Lun feels calm with the rocks because they are still, and the land is solid. He doesn't like the water because the waves are always moving, so he can't trust the water because he doesn't know what to expect.

B: The Purpose of Writing

Why do people write? Why should you write? Writing is an important form of communication that you use to connect to other people and yourself. Because of the recent advancements in electronic communication, you will probably find more reasons to write as an adult than your mom or dad do now.

Many businesses communicate electronically and advertise through web sites. If you get involved in business as you grow older, you will need to write clearly and precisely when delivering vital information or you may write for entertainment and enjoyment.

Your job this year is to learn new writing strategies and work to apply them to your writing. You will write fiction, non-fiction, and poetry. But where will you get your ideas? How will you know what to write?

The Sketchbook: Many artists keep a sketchbook and record their ideas in order to remember what they have seen and observed. They write their ideas down, so that they do not forget them. Sculptors, jewelry makers, fashion designers, and architects keep some type of file or notebook to help them develop new and original ideas. Writers are artists, too. As an artist, you will keep a sketchbook to help you develop your ideas. Not everything you collect will be developed into formal writing, but your collection will inspire your writing.

1. These Activity Sheets will serve as the basic skeleton for this year's sketchbook. We recommend you put these Activity Sheets in a separate binder. That way you can insert additional pages of completed assignments after each week's Activity Sheet, and compile your sketchbook as you work throughout the year. Continue to add to your sketchbook anytime you find something that you like. Strive to observe and be aware of the world around you. Cut out articles, pictures, photos, headlines, or phrases. If you hear song lyrics or if someone says something unusual, write it in your sketchbook. If you learn something interesting in math, history, science, or foreign language, write it down. Entries for your sketchbook can come from anywhere. Language Arts is not your only source for ideas.

1. Li Lun, Lad of Courage, p. 27.

2. For your sketchbook's inaugural activity, conduct an interview with yourself to record who you are today. When you look back at your sketchbook in weeks and years to come, this self-interview will provide context to the rest of the writing assignments in your sketchbook. The interview will help you remember why you wrote and thought in a certain way.

To conduct the interview, answer the questions below on a separate sheet of paper. Include any other facts you find important or interesting about who you are today.

- I. How would others describe me?
- II. How do I get along with members of my family?
- III. If I could take three people with me on a trip to the moon, I would take:

C: Observation

This week your task is to write an Observation Essay in which you describe something you've observed. Try to include sensory details and things you've observed with each of your five senses. Today, select something that interests you. Observe and take notes as you observe it. Don't worry about writing complete sentences yet—you will turn your notes into sentences tomorrow. Simply jot down a few words that will help you remember what you observed. Be sure to pay attention to what your senses tell you as you observe and make notes that will help you tomorrow.

D: Observation Essay

Today you will use the notes you took yesterday to write your Observation Essay. Write the observation as it played out like a short story and be sure to include the sensory details you made note of yesterday. To give your essay a little structure, include an introduction and a conclusion. In your introductory paragraph, define the essay's focus. Present the main idea of the story you're about to tell in the rest of the essay. In the last paragraph—the conclusion—tell what you learned from your observation. Is there something you can accomplish with this observation? Decide on your audience. Who will be interested in reading your observation? Write as though you are talking to them.

Here’s a brief sample of what a definition essay about courage might look like:

I’ve heard it said that courage is not the absence of fear, but the ability to do what is right in the face of fear. We tend to think of courage in terms of outward acts of bravery, such as rescuing someone from a burning building. While I agree that this is one example of courage, I also think that courage can be less obvious.

My uncle has been fighting cancer for three years. It has been scary for my whole family, but especially for my uncle. We have just learned that his cancer has spread.

My uncle is courageous because he is doing what is right in a very frightening situation. He doesn’t pretend that he’s not afraid, but he also doesn’t let the fear stop him from living his life the best he can. Even when he has to go to the hospital for treatments, he brings his guitar and makes the people around him smile.

My uncle doesn’t look like a super hero and he probably can’t save anyone from a burning building, but I think he is the perfect embodiment of true courage.

How to Evaluate This Week’s Assignment

C: The Definition Essay

Use the outline you completed yesterday to help you write the first draft of your definition essay. Who is your audience? Are you writing for your friends, your teacher, a general audience?

Write an introduction, body paragraphs, and a conclusion. In your introduction, catch your readers’ attention with a quotation, part of a song lyric, or any other interesting fact about courage. Then, include the dictionary meaning and tell your readers how you feel about courage.

For the body paragraphs, describe what courage means to you. Follow the outline to include not only your personal definition, but also a description of someone you know who is courageous (or you have read about). The final body paragraph should explain why the person you chose for your example fits your definition of courage.

Finally, compare your personal definition of courage to the denotative meaning of the term in your conclusion. What did you learn about courage?

D: Revise

Why revise? Let’s say that a friend asks you to draw a picture of him or her. So, the two of you sit down and you draw the picture without erasing anything or starting over. Will the picture be a perfect copy of your friend? You would probably need to erase and revise a few times to create a good likeness of your friend.

Revision applies to writing, too, because even professional writers do not write a perfect composition on the first attempt. You may not always have time to revise every paper that you write this year, but you will need to polish some compositions. Complete the following steps today to revise your Definition Essay.

1. Read your first draft aloud to your mom or dad. Listen to the flow of the words. How does it sound? Stop and make notes on your paper of any errors that you heard during your reading.
2. Next, have your mom or dad ask you questions about your paper. Are those questions answered in your paper? Do you need to add details? Stop and make notes on your paper to add details. What feeling do you get from the overall paper? How would you like your readers to feel after reading your paper? Does your paper contain that emotion? Replace words with synonyms that provide the correct connotations.
3. Finally, use the revision checklist below to check the rest of your work. Make corrections and write a final draft.

Revision Checklist

- _____ Ideas are interesting
- _____ Organization includes a beginning, middle, and end
- _____ Used correct spelling
- _____ Words are descriptive
- _____ Used complete sentences
- _____ Used capitals correctly

Week 3

Day 1

Readers

Wild Orchid: A Retelling of “The Ballad of Mulan” | Chapters 15–16

Creative Expression

Weekly Overview

Mechanics Practice: Adjectives—definition; articles; proper and common; compound

Creative Expression:

Skill: Convey tone in writing

Assignment: Write a scary story

Optional: Dictation¹

The fact that I had not stolen my remarkable horse had been established once and for all. I was now assigned to Prince Jian’s forces—specifically, to an elite archer corps. I had Li Po to thank for both these things, just as I had him to thank for my first hot meal since leaving home.

A: Mechanics Practice

Today your children will learn about different types of adjectives. They will also briefly review nouns, pronouns, and adverbs, which we will discuss more in depth later. For more information, see the Week 3 Activity Sheet.

Note to Mom or Dad: This year, your children will delve more deeply into the mechanics of the English language, and we’ll begin to serve up some rather meaty grammatical topics. To help both of you in your study this year, we have included a Grammar Guide in Section Three of this guide that succinctly explains topics we’ll discuss for Mechanics Practice. Please keep this appendix handy for reference as you work this year. We hope you make great use of it whenever you need a refresher on any topic.

Answers:

1. Which sentence is better? Hopefully your children selected the second sentence as the additional adjectives help to paint a clearer picture in the reader’s mind.
2. Adjectives in the dictation passage:

Common Adjectives	Proper Adjectives	Compound Adjectives
my	Prince Jian’s	(none in this passage)
remarkable
elite
archer
these
first
hot

Use tally marks to record the articles you find:

the	a	an

3. Write a sentence that uses the one type of adjective you learned about today that was not found in the passage. (After a busy week, I look forward to a low-key evening reading my favorite book by the fire.)

B: Tone

Today you will work with your children to identify tone in various writing samples.

Discuss the quoted passages on the Activity Sheet with your children. After you have discussed a passage, have your children read it aloud; placing emphasis on the appropriate words and phrases.

1. Wild Orchid: A Retelling of “The Ballad of Mulan,” p. 115.

When you have finished your discussion, have your children complete the “B: Tone” activity on the Week 3 Activity Sheet.

Possible answers:

1. Desperate; Buck was completely at the mercy of his handlers.
2. Scared; His terror increased as his pleas went unanswered.
3. Frantic; I shall never reach the key and leave this place!
4. Sad; With a heavy heart, she lay awake and wished for morning.
5. Excited; Her energy caused him to feel quite alert as he sat up in bed.

D: Tone in a Scary Story

Today your children will use what they have learned about connotation and tone to write a short scary story. See “D: Tone in a Scary Story” on the Week 3 Activity Sheet for more information. Here’s an example of a brief story about a scary time in my life:

I woke up with a start. Although I usually sleep through the night with no interruptions, something had jarred me from my slumber. What could it have been?

I listened intently. Thunder cracked outside and sheets of rain pounded the window next to my bed. Another May thunderstorm raged outside. But I can sleep through the worst of storms. Something else must be going on, I thought.

As my feet hit the cold floor, a chill ran up my spine. Why was it so cold in my room? I crept downstairs slowly, suddenly very wary of what I might find there.

When I reached the bottom of the landing, I immediately noticed the front door standing ajar. My heart raced as my eyes darted about the room, looking for any sign of a possible intruder.

And there it was! In the corner, a strange creature sat up on its haunches with a piece of leftover pizza clutched in its grubby paws. When I flicked on the lightswitch, I discovered the mess the raccoon had made. The overturned trash can explained what must have caused a sound loud enough to wake me from a deep sleep.

Relief flowed through me, as the raccoon made its way to the front door and back outside. I cleaned up his mess and then hit the hay again. I barely remembered the evening’s excitement when I awoke the following morning.

How to Evaluate This Week’s Assignment

For this week’s assignment, ensure your children wrote a scary story that conveys an appropriate tone to the reader. As your children are still building their vocabulary, give them credit for choosing words that have the correct connotation, but don’t mark them down if not every word is spot-on. If they wrote a scary story that is somewhat creepy, they've met the main goals of this assignment.

Notes

You may choose to use the sample rubric as-is or modify for your own purposes. If there's some other skill you'd like to help your child develop, go ahead and add it to the rubric, assigning it a point value. Add up all of the points in the rubric to determine the number of points that will equal 100%. After that, simply read through your children's work, thinking about each point on your rubric as you go. Divide the number of points your children earned by the number of points possible to determine a percentage.

Scary Story Rubric
Content
_____	5 pts	The narrative includes a beginning, middle, and end
_____	5 pts	Word choice reflects proper connotation
_____	5 pts	Adjectives help illustrate the tone
Mechanics
_____	5 pts	The essay uses correct capitalization and punctuation
_____	5 pts	The essay uses correct spelling
_____	5 pts	The sentences contain complete thoughts
_____ ÷ 30 pts possible = _____ %

The fact that I had not stolen my remarkable horse had been established once and for all. I was now assigned to Prince Jian’s forces—specifically, to an elite archer corps. I had Li Po to thank for both these things, just as I had him to thank for my first hot meal since leaving home.

A: Mechanics Practice

A noun, as you probably remember, is a person, place, thing, or idea, and pronouns are words that rename nouns. For example, he is a pronoun we can use to refer to someone named Jason. To make nouns and pronouns more interesting, writers use descriptive words called adjectives to describe them. For example:

The car raced around the track.

The shiny new Indy car raced around the cold, wet track.

- Which sentence is better? Why?

Did you know that there are several different types of adjectives? The following sentences show examples of the different types:

My grandma’s spare room is my most favorite place to sleep. A downy soft pillow, sheets made from Egyptian cotton, and the sweet-smelling breeze that drifts through the open window lull me to sleep in an instant, and I always wake up to delectable smells wafting up the stairs from the kitchen.

Just as nouns have both common and proper designations, adjectives may be proper as well. Can you find proper adjective in our example? The word Egyptian is a proper adjective that describes the noun cotton. Conversely, spare is a common adjective that describes room. sweet-smelling is a compound adjective—two words joined together that act as an adjective. Even the words a, an and the, which are called articles, act as adjectives in the structure of a sentence.

- Look at the dictation passage. What adjectives do you see? Remember, adjectives are words that describe nouns. If you see a word that describes a verb (an action), it is an adverb, which we’ll discuss later. Record the adjectives you find in the chart below:

Common Adjectives

Proper Adjectives

Compound Adjectives

Use tally marks to record the articles you find:

- Write a sentence that uses the one type of adjective you learned about today that was not found in the passage.

B: Tone

Have you ever heard someone say, "Don't speak to me in that tone of voice?" What does tone of voice mean? In literature, tone is the attitude that a writer has for a written passage. As a writer, the words you use create the tone.

The best time to set the tone is when you are describing the setting or events in a story. For example, this week you will write about a scary moment you experienced in your life. You want to relate to your readers the feelings as you experienced them, so you will choose words that express how frightened you were.

Tone in Literature

Read the passages below with Mom or Dad and discuss the feelings that you get as you read them. Underline the specific words that contribute most significantly to the overall tone. Write a word to describe the tone at the beginning of the paragraph. Then, write a new sentence that matches the tone of the rest of the paragraph.

1. _____ "Buck had accepted the rope with quiet dignity. To be sure, it was an unwonted performance, but he had learned to trust in men he knew, and to give them credit for a wisdom that outreached his own. But when the ends of the rope were placed in the stranger's hands, he growled menacingly. He had merely intimated his displeasure, in his pride believing that to intimate was to command. But to his surprise the rope tightened around his neck, shutting off his breath. In quick rage he sprang at the man, who met him halfway, grappled him close by the throat, and with a deft twist threw him over on his back. Then the rope tightened mercilessly, while Buck struggled in a fury, his tongue lolling out of his mouth and his great chest panting futilely. Never in all his life had he been so vilely treated, and never in all his life had he been so angry. But his strength ebbed, his eyes glazed, and he knew nothing when the train was flagged and the two men threw him into the baggage car."

Adapted from Call of the Wild
by Jack London

2. _____ "At first, when he found himself in the grip of what he was sure must be the Robber Fly, Buster Bumblebee was so alarmed that he could not even scream. But in a moment or two he found his voice. And he shrieked 'Help! Help!' in a most frantic tone, hoping that some one would come and save him."

Adapted from The Tale of Buster Bumblebee
by Arthur Scott Bailey

3. _____ "That was a narrow escape!" said Alice, a good deal frightened at the sudden change, but very glad to find herself still in existence; "and now for the garden!" She ran with all speed back to the little door, but the little door was shut again, and the little golden key was lying on the glass table as before, "and things are worse than ever," thought the poor child, "for I never was so small as this before, never! And I declare it's too bad, that it is!"

LA Week 3 Activity Sheet

4. _____ "She threw herself back on her pillow and buried her face. She did not cry, but she lay and hated the sound of the heavily beating rain, she hated the wind and its 'wuthering.' She could not go to sleep again. The mournful sound kept her awake because she felt mournful herself. If she had felt happy it would probably have lulled her to sleep. How it 'wuthered' and how the big raindrops poured down and beat against the panel!"

Adapted from The Secret Garden
by Frances Hodgson Burnett

5. _____ "Bunny! Bunny! Wake up! It's time!"

'Wha--what's matter?' sleepily mumbled little Bunny Brown, making his words all run together, like molasses candy that has been out in the hot sun. 'What's the matter, Sue?' Bunny asked, now that he had his eyes open. He looked over the side of his small bed to see his sister standing beside it. She had left her own little room and had run into her brother's.

'What's the matter, Sue?' Bunny asked again.

'Why, it's time to get up, Bunny,' and Sue opened her brown eyes more widely, as she tried to get the 'sleepy feeling' out of them. 'It's time to get up!'"

Adapted from Bunny Brown and His Sister Sue
by Laura Lee Hope

C: Create Tone

Write three paragraphs in your sketchbook to create a tone for your choice of three of the following tone words:

1. happy
2. sad
3. annoyed
4. nervous
5. frightened

Choose words for your paragraphs with connotations that transfer or relay the specific tone. In the example below, notice that the words "slammed," "stomped," and "ruined" communicate the anger that Sally feels. Only one rule: you cannot use the tone word in your paragraph. For example, if the tone word is anger, you cannot write the word anger. Instead show the reader the anger with examples and details:

Incorrect: Sally was angry because her sister made her mad.

Correct: Sally slammed the door to her bedroom and stomped across the room. Her sister had borrowed her clothes again without her permission. To make matters worse, her sister ruined the shirt when she spilled spaghetti sauce on it. Her sister wasn't even in trouble. Sally was grounded because she yelled at her sister. It wasn't fair.

Have someone read your paragraphs and identify your tone. They do not have to state the exact tone; as long as they get the sense, you'll have succeeded. If your tone is joyful and your reader says that the tone is happiness, then you have still portrayed the tone in your writing.

How well did you do? How many tones did your reader recognize correctly? Add your tone paragraphs to your sketch book as ideas for future compositions.

D: Tone in a Scary Story

Today, write a story about a time when you were scared.

Set the story in a scary tone that illustrates how you felt at the time. If you can't think of a time when you were scared, write about a scary time one of your friends or family members has experienced. Focus on your word choice; use examples and details to show the tone.
